Hundreds Greet Israeli Chief Rabbi

Dr. Isaac Halevi Herzog, Israel's chief rabbi, arriving at the New York International Airport, Idlewild, Queens, said that unless Israel's housing situation was remedied immediately "a condition may arise that may cause us to consider a curtailment of immigration."

The 60-year-old leader, who is the final authority on all religious problems in Israel and who served for several years as chief rabbi of Ireland, came at the invitation of Henry Morgenthau Jr., general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal campaign for $250,000,000, and is taking an active part in the drive.

When Dr. Herzog appeared at the airport several hundred Orthodox rabbis broke through a police line to greet him. Several attempted to kiss him, while others sang Hatikvah, the Israeli national anthem. White-bearded, wearing the traditional long black coat and wide-brimmed black hat, Rabbi Herzog, who is slight of build, smilingly greeted the large delegation.

Among those meeting him were John F. Rapp and Alphonsus V. Grant, officials of the Ancient Order of Hibernians; Henry Montor, executive director of the Appeal, and Moshe Yuval, first secretary of the Israeli Embassy. Rabbi Herzog was accompanied by his wife, Sarah.

Half a dozen uniformed police were brushed aside by the crowd, and a force of airport maintenance men was summoned to assist in aiding Rabbi Herzog to a waiting automobile.

To the welcoming group, many garbed in taftans, long Rabbinic [illegible] of silk, Rabbi Herzog [illegible] Pre-bar mitzvah (pre-confirmation) students at Hebrew schools and bearded, dignified patriarchs alike fought their way through the throng merely to touch Rabbi Herzog.

Speaking in fluent English with a trace of an Irish brogue, Rabbi Herzog told of 60,000 newcomers in Israel who are "living under the most primitive conditions," and added:

"I assured these immigrants that Israel was prepared to assume any hardship, no matter how great, to provide a decent life in a free land for those who have been persecuted and dispersed for years."

He said that Israeli's immigrants looked for support to American Jews. In discussing the possibility of the curtailment of immigration he declared that such a move

Israeli Cancer Pioneer Dies In New York

Dr. Ludwig Halberstaedter, of Jerusalem, radiologist and a pioneer in cancer therapy and research, died of a heart ailment in New York at 600 West End Avenue, at the age of 72. He came to the United States in December to survey cancer research and therapy techniques.

Originator of the million-volt x-ray therapy apparatus used in the treatment of cancer and first scientist to take a supply of radium to Palestine, Dr. Halberstaedter was named chief of the Cancer Radiology Institute of the Rothschild-Hadassah University Hospital in Jerusalem in 1934. He became professor of radiology and therapy and chief of the cancer laboratories of the Hebrew University the next year.

Born in Germany, he received a medical degree in 1901 from Breslau University. From 1901 to 1905 he was assistant at the University Hospital for Skin Diseases in Breslau, working mainly with X-ray and radium treatment and in research. Then he was a member of a research expedition sent to Java by the German Reich to experiment with monkeys and apes in the treatment of thromboesis, trachoma, tuberculosis, and other diseases.

Research assistant in the department of pathology at the University of Breslau from 1907 to 1914, he served as an officer in the medical corps of the German Army during the first World War.

Dr. Halberstaedter was chief of the department of radiotherapy and cancer in the University of Berlin from 1919 through 1933, when he was forced to flee from Germany because of the coming of the Nazi regime. It was during his Berlin service that he originated methods for measuring the dosage from exposure to its rays during experimentation. He was also credited with being the first to tabulate the specific effects of X-rays on the human ovaries.

He was a member of the British Institute of Radiology and the American Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine.

Surviving are his widow, Agnes; a daughter, Alberta, of New York; and two sons, Max, a radiologist of St. Mary's Hospital, London; and Klaus, of California.

N.Y. Yiddish Daily Attacks Israel

Israel's leaders, led by President Chaim Weismann, are aiding the United States to "enslave" their country and conspiring to have it join a Mediterranean pact against the Soviet Union in alliance with France Spain and other countries, it is charged by the Morning Freiheit, New York, Communist Yiddish daily, in its anti-Zionist campaign.

A lead article by F. Novick on the Freiheit's editorial page asserts that the United States Export-Import Bank's credit of $100,000,000 to Israel has made that country an economic vassal. The goods Israel will buy in the U. S. must be delivered in United States ships and may not be re-exported, while Israel is forced to accept technical advisers from the United States, who have veto powers over development projects, Mr. Novick charges. He also finds it sinister that Israel will have to make available statistics regarding wages, taxes, customs receipts and foreign trade.

The Freiheit and the English language Daily Worker charge President Weismann with being an Anglophile and an ingrate who has not expressed proper appreciation of the help given Israel by the Soviet Union and the satellite "people's democracies," both in the debates of the United Nations and through the deliveries of arms and munitions.

Current policies of Israel's leaders make them accomplices of President Truman and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin in the "cold war" against Russia, the Communist organ asserts. It is to this alleged anti-Soviet attitude of Zionist leaders that the Freiheit traces Zionist efforts to help Jews emigrate from Poland to Israel.

Both the Freiheit and the Daily Worker deny indignantly that Communist or Soviet policy is against Israel or anti-Semitic in [illegible]. A series of articles [illegible] Worker has argued that the receipt of Stalin Prizes by several Soviet Jews for achievement in the arts and sciences proves there is no anti-Semitism in that country. He dismisses as being of no real significance the fact that Soviet papers have gone to the unusual length of revealing Jewish names in parentheses after the Russian pseudonyms of writers being attacked for "cosmopolitanism."

Meanwhile, observers of the Soviet press have noted that the cartoon campaign against "cosmopolitanism" in Krokodil, the lavishly illustrated Soviet humor publication, has been marked by the use of hooked noses on the figures used to represent "cosmopolitanism." One cartoon on the front page of Krokodil juxtaposes the name Lippman—which is usually Jewish in the Soviet Union—with the word "Zhid," a derisive Russian term for Jews used by Russian-speaking anti-Semites, according to the New York Times.

An article in Pravda recently assails "cosmopolitans" and "cosmopolitanism" as instruments of Wall Street. It then goes on to quote an otherwise unidentified American whose name is given as Cohen as preaching a master race theory to serve the ends of American imperialism.

Z. O. A. Warns Of Hostile Moves

Dr. Emanuel Neumann, president of the Zionist Organization of America, denounced the realignment of "hostile elements" against Israel. He asserted that the activities of the American Council for Judaism "showed a certain amount of coordination with corresponding anti-Zionist propaganda emanating from non-Jewish sources."

The Council has taken the stand that Americans of Jewish faith should work toward integration in American life rather than sponsor "Jewish nationalism."

Speaking at a closed session of the national executive committee of the Zionist Organization in New York, Dr. Neumann maintained that the Council "is determined to take on a new lease on life despite the establishment of the Jewish state and despite the gratifying fact that anti-Zionism among the Jewish masses is virtually non-existent," according to the New York Times.

He warned the American Zionist movement to be on the alert against groups that are attempting to influence "the American attitude toward the just demands of the Jewish state in the matter of the final settlement of its boundaries and the status of Jerusalem." He said:

"The American Government must continue to be sustained by an alert public opinion if it is to resist various anti-Israel pressures which are now being exerted and which may be intensified in the future. American Zionists "must keep watch and ward to maintain public interest and public sympathy for the struggling young republic, as well as extend every possible economic assistance."

He emphasized that the American Zionist Emergency Council representing all Zionist groups, "must continue as the effective instrument of all American Zionists in the field of public relations."

[illegible] committee was the [illegible] fifty-second annual Zionist convention that is scheduled to open in New York on May 28. Judge Henry Ellenbogen, of Pittsburgh, has been appointed chairman of a committee on election procedure. This committee, an announcement said, includes members of the Committee for Progressive Zionism who are opposed to various organization policies.

The meeting also observed two minutes of silence in tribute to the memory of Dr. Stephen S. Wise, one of the founders of the organization, and Rabbi Meir Berlin, head of the Mizrachi World Organization, who recently died in Tel Aviv.

N.Y. To Set Up Anti-Bias Centres

The New York City Board of Education and the National Conference of Christians and Jews will establish next September eight special centers to promote better relations among the city's religious and racial groups.

The joint project will train school and community leaders needed to reduce intergroup tensions and is believed to be the most extensive program of its kind ever undertaken. Preliminary plans call for establishing two of the "human relations learning centers" in each of the boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx and one each in Queens and Richmond. In the Spring and Fall of 1950 more units will be added until twenty or so have been set up in the five boroughs.

The announcement of the program was made at a meeting at the Board of Education by Dr. William Jansen, Superintendent of Schools; Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and Deputy Mayor John J. Bennett, chairman of the conference's New York Committee.

The centers, or "workshops," will be staffed by sixty instructors from the city's school personnel, Dr. Jansen said. The teachers will receive special training from Dr. Martin Cehworowsky, coordinator of the Intergroup Relations Program at Teachers College, Columbia University, and Don Leveridge, the conference's Director of Education for the area.

Training classes for workshop instructors will begin in July at Teachers College with funds jointly provided by the board and the conference. The cost of training instructors will come to $60 each.

Dr. Jansen said the schools were happy to join the conference "in a

COUNCIL SCORES CONCEPT THAT ALL JEWS MUST JOIN PRO-ISRAELI BLOC

A warning that "Israel must cease and desist in its efforts to establish itself on a world-wide 'Jewish' nationalism that is shattering the basis of our American national integration," was voiced by Lessing J. Rosenwald, of Jenkintown, Pennsylvania, president of the American Council for Judaism, at a conference in Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Rosenwald, who is the son of the late Julius Rosenwald, noted American philanthropist, and head of the Sears-Roebuck Company, of Chicago, described these developments in Palestine as fulfillment "in the garb of deep tragedy" of predictions of the Council for which he said it had been "villified and ridiculed":

"The creation and recognition of a sovereign state of Israel has, with alarming speed, tremendously intensified the Jewish nationalists' desire to control our lives and to advance their claim that all Jews possess a 'Jewish' nationality such as has been achieved already in Israel and imposed upon Jews in Arab lands.

"In America, we are Jews by religion, Americans by nationality, and our American national integration must not be impeded by any rights in or responsibilities to a separate 'Jewish' nationalism," Mr. Rosenwald said in restating the "essential American principles" for which the Council "alone has stood steadfast" during "six difficult years."

Members of the Council, Mr. Rosenwald told the two hundred delegates, "always knew that a so-called 'Jewish' state was not an end in itself, but only a step in the realization of a total program designed by 'Jewish' nationalism in Palestine."

"As Americans," he said, "we cannot afford to be stampeded into losing the continuing struggle with 'Jewish' nationalism in the United States, in our national homeland."

Mr. Rosenwald charged that "the political representatives of Israel have persistently spoken of 'Jews' rather than of 'Israelis'."

"They have continued to involve Jews in Israel's territorial and political problems," he said. "Emissaries of the Israeli state are in every nation of the world, mobilizing the financial resources of Jews to support the 'national home of the Jewish people'."

Mr. Rosenwald charged further that the Jerusalem section of the Jewish Agency, of which Eliezer Kaplan, Israel Minister of Finance, is a member, had imposed its "solution" upon "both the United Jewish Appeal and the United Palestine Appeal."

"The line of control now runs directly from the Israeli Government to the Jewish Agency to the United Palestine Appeal," he said.

Many organizations of Jews had moved closer to the position of the Council during the past year, Mr. Rosenwald declared.

"Even the Zionist organizations have in some instances urged political separation," he said, "but all of them, however, admit and encourage a mutuality of national rights and responsibilities between Israel and Jews who are nationals of other countries.

"They all participate in ef-

In qualifying for membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations, publishers are doing more than providing advertisers with the facts about the circulation of their publications.

They are also giving active support to the principle that advertising space should be bought and sold only on the basis of verified information — a principle that has contributed in large measure to the interests of all advertisers.

In Canada, the Canadian Jewish Review is still the only Jewish publication printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is able to claim membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

common effort to achieve better relations among all the peoples of the city."

"Out of these expanded workshops will come more and better qualified leaders, experienced and trained in the field," he added.

Dr. Clinchy said the new program would stimulate teachers and parents to carry out activities that will foster human relations in the classroom and in the community.

Deputy Mayor Bennett said the workshops would give New York "the most comprehensive educational training program in the country to combat intergroup tensions."

The workshop plan grew out of experimental pilot groups set up last fall at Columbia University, the Woodrow Wilson Foundation and in several city public schools. The workshops, in their day-to-day activities, will emphasize the exchange of experience through discussion and by planning "action assignments" in the community.

The centers will probably be set up in public schools and will operate during after-school hours. Teams of teachers and parents will be recruited unit.

Plans for the program were mapped by Dr. Jacob Greenberg, associate superintendent of schools in charge of teachers personnel and by Mr. Leveridge.

Gather To Hear Of S.O.S. Lifeline

The American Joint Distribution Committee wrote "mission accomplished" on one of its most intensive relief campaigns: "Operation SOS", the Supplies for Overseas Survivors Collection.

With a shift in the Committee's program for aiding Jews in Europe from relief to re-settlement, the executive committee officially ended the SOS Collection three-year drive by giving a testimonial luncheon at the Commodore Hotel to committee chairmen from all parts of the U.S. Before 175 SOS community representatives, the story of how 26,300,000 pounds of food, clothing, drugs and other relief supplies were provided was re-told, its chairmen honored, the future JDC role outlined.

First came a message from Edward M. M. Warburg, Committee chairman, praising the "story of the SOS lifeline."

Figures told the story in Mr. Warburg's report — 14,000,000 pounds of food and 11,000,000 pounds of clothing, including 8,000,000 articles for 75,000 complete layettes. Articles poured in to SOS depots in 1,000 communities.

Last year was the largest, with 11,008,697 pounds gathered; 10,401,297 pounds shipped. This year, 1,021,812 pounds were collected, and shipment has passed the 1,600,000 mark.

Dr. Jonah B. Wise, JDC vice-chairman, nominated Mrs. Isaac Gilman for the JDC board of directors, and she was elected unanimously. As co-chairman of the SOS Collection with Albert M. Kahn, Mrs. Gilman paid tribute to the 1,000,000 volunteers, two-thirds of them women, who worked on the drive. She recalled how seventeen national Jewish women's organizations cooperating on the drive with 400 city-wide committees "brought the SOS message into every home."

Noting that SOS supplies "came from virtually every city in the U. S.", Mrs. Gilman described the battle for aid as "100 Dunkirks". In the metropolitan area, with Mrs. Emanuel Smalbach at the helm, 6,750,000 pounds of supplies were obtained.

Mrs. Gilman urged communities throughout the country to forward their collections to the SOS warehouse at 1539 Troy Avenue, Brooklyn. The 212 SOS depots in temples, synagogues and community centers in New York City will have until April 30 to complete their collections.

As chairman of the trades and industry division, Mr. Kahn spoke of what it meant abroad for displaced persons to receive new suits sent them this year instead of used clothing.

Moses A. Leavitt, JDC vice-chairman, led the other speakers in urging that those who worked for SOS continue their affiliation with JDC by aiding the United Jewish Appeal. JDC tasks were outlined by Moses W. Beckelman, vice-chairman of the JDC European executive council.

Urges Central Body For Child Care

A plea that child care agencies pledge mutual cooperation in meeting the problems of placement and care of emotionally disturbed and dependent children of New York was made by Ralph E. Samuel, president of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York.

Such an agreement would "provide a definite road to a formalized organization" and would constitute "a defense pact against the stress and strains of living today," he said at the dedication ceremonies of a $125,000 gymnasium at the Hawthorne Cedar Knolls School. This resident treatment center for emotionally disturbed children, some of whom are referred by the Children's Court of New York, is maintained by the Jewish Board of Guardians. Six hundred persons attended. The gymnasium was erected with funds provided by the Hayden Foundation.

"It is time that the child care and case work agencies of the community should and must share their wisdom and their experiences currently and constantly," Mr. Samuel said.

The agencies of the Federation concerned with child care are planning a three-year experiment in common admissions procedures, he reported. It will provide for a [illegible] in coordinated planning for [illegible] family that seeks help for a child.

He expressed the hope that the success of the experiment would encourage agencies outside the Federation to join with Federation groups in a central child care planning body that "would in effect constitute a sort of Atlantic pact of child care agencies."

A $100,000 fund for scientific research and publications to be known as the Judah L. Magnes Memorial Fund has been established in the name of the late president of the Hebrew University, Jerusalem, it was announced by Mrs. Samuel J. Rosensohn, of New York, chairman of the medical committee of Hadassah of America. Dr. Magnes, who died on October 27, 1948, while on a visit in the United States, was also previously chancellor of the Hebrew University. The fund will be used to grant research fellowship awards to doctors and scientists on the staff of the Hadassah Medical Organization in Israel and the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School. The medical school is slated for opening on May 14, the first anniversary of the declaration of the Jewish State. Dr. Magnes sat on the planning board of the school during the last few years of his life. Candidates for the awards will be selected on the basis of work under way or for future projects. The grants will be given yearly. The Magnes Fund will be used exclusively for work being done in Israel.

PINEAPPLE UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

Melt one-quarter cup of butter in bottom of angel cake tin. Add one-half cup of brown sugar, pat down, and add about eight slices of pineapple. Put a cherry in the middle and add nuts.

Batter:

one-third cup butter
two eggs
one and three-quarter cups flour
one-half teaspoon vanilla
one cup white sugar
one-half cup milk
one-half teaspoon salt
two teaspoons baking powder

Cream sugar with butter and add beaten eggs. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with milk. Add vanilla, and bake at 350, for forty-five minutes, and turn out.

Mrs. B. Epstein,
834 Briar Hill Avenue, Toronto.

STRUDEL

For the dough, beat two eggs well. Add one-quarter cup sugar, one-half cup of oil, and then one and one-half or two cups flour, and one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, which have been sifted together. Mix carefully, and then put in refrigerator for fifteen minutes, before rolling it out on a floured cloth. For the filling, grind together: raisins, nuts, apples, coconut, cherries, Turkish delight, dried prunes and dried apricots. Mix it together with jam, and then roll up dough with the filling. Bake on a greased and floured tin for about one-half hour in a moderate oven. Cut in pieces while still warm.

Mrs. H. Levine,
4911 Fulton Avenue, Montreal.

From show business, the National Conference of Christians and Jews chose four leaders to receive awards for their contributions to good relations among faiths. Irene Dunne, film actress, receiving a citation presented by Bernard M. Baruch during a Waldorf-Astoria luncheon, recalled her title role in the film "I Remember Mama". She suggested an answer that that heroine might then have given to the question: "You love America so much—is perfect." In the Norwegian accent of the immigrant mother she had portrayed, Miss Dunne replied: "America—is good. Is not perfect, not yet. Is a word 'tolerance.' Is not good this word 'tolerance'? Our Lord says we must love our neighbor, not just tolerate him. When we have learned to love our neighbor, not just ourselves, no matter where he comes from, then America will be perfect."

A young woman arrived in New York from Israel in search of an artificial left arm to replace the limb she lost thirteen years ago while serving as an ammunition handler for Haganah. Miss Tavorah Rousso, a clerk of Haifa, Israel, who was among the 357 passengers aboard the emergency liner Marine Carp, said she was there on a three to six month visit during which she planned to see manufacturers of artificial limbs in New York and Kansas City. Miss Rousso, now 25 years old, explained that her arm was amputated after an ammunition truck in which she was riding overturned. Her handicap, she added, did not prevent her from serving as a nurse's aid in the women's branch of the Israeli army during the recent fighting. On her return home Miss Rousso plans to instruct other amputees, especially veterans, in the use of artificial arms. She said hundreds of Israeli soldiers were despondent over the fact that because of war injuries they were no longer able to work as skilled laborers.

Brotherhood Can Be Taught

By Everett R. Clinchy, President, The National Conference Of Christians And Jews

When Laura Hobson asked Darryl Zanuck why he decided to make a moving picture of her novel, "Gentleman's Agreement," Mr. Zanuck came up with a somewhat personal reason: "I did not want my son, when he grows up, to be able to say: Dad, what were you doing twenty-five years ago when you were a big shot in Hollywood? Why didn't you do what you could against intolerance and hate, to show the dignity of human beings?"

Moving pictures which face the problem of intergroup conflict in America are fairly recent in development and somewhat infrequent in production. But the use of mass media to reshape human relations is not new in modern times. Joseph Goebbels employed them effectively for his own needs, proving perhaps more conclusively than anyone ever has that ignorance and hate can be scientifically taught.

The instruments which Mr. Goebbels used to set man against man can be used for an entirely different purpose, to reshape a pattern of human relations wherein all culture groups, whatever their race, religion or nationality, can enjoy equal opportunity to live fruitful lives and contribute to America's health and well-being.

A majority of Americans will become better acquainted with their neighbors during the week sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews as "Brotherhood Week" for the whole nation. In a way it is democracy's show week. The aim is to make Americans more brotherhood-conscious for one week and to help generate a drive which brings greater human freedom to all American groups throughout the year.

Since its founding in 1928 the National Conference of Christians and Jews has been working through established institutions to promote better understanding among people of all cultural groups, to replace worn-out stereotypes about races, cultures and religions with wholesome respect for the individual as a human being. The conference maintains sixty-four regional offices that direct operations in some 300 communities. Using as its distribution points the schools, churches, press and radio, labor unions and industrial organizations, civic groups, and so on, it aims to provide the tools and the techniques to make brotherhood a practical article for all Americans to use.

The conviction behind all this is that brotherhood can be taught. This is more than a faith. The National Conference of Christians and Jews has learned, by piecemeal experience, that understanding can be taught just as hate can be taught. Human beings can learn to cope with inter-group encounters, tensions and conflicts without resorting to group discriminations or acts which deny the dignity and the rights of any culture group.

Not long ago a family of Americans of Japanese stock, relocated in a Minnesota community, were being boycotted by the neighborhood. It was a sort of cumulative blackball which began with threatening anonymous letters. Prejudiced actions by merchants, neighbors, school children grew to an explosive pressure. Some of the more reasonable citizens in the community asked help from the local chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

As a first step the conference called together a group of clergymen of all faiths and asked them how this problem looked to them as religious leaders. Did they think the Americans of Japanese background should stay in their community or should they be forced to leave? Priests, ministers, rabbis decided that the family should stay.

Armed with this moral support, the conference asked the schools in the neighborhood to hold special discussions on the subject: "Who are Americans?" School teachers were asked to guide the children in mulling over the question: "What made American civilization rich—one culture or many? Did the Orient have anything to contribute as Europe and Africa contributed?"

The editor of the local newspaper helped by dealing with the same questions editorially. Local radio stations stimulated people to think by talking about tolerance and goodwill. A group of women who lived in the section near the American-Japanese family held a tea and faced the question directly, under leadership that was definitely but tactfully trying to find out [illegible] its prejudiced actions, morally and legally. A few merchants took a stand against discrimination.

The result was that the American family of Japanese ancestry remained and is now fully integrated into the community — because a few Protestants, Catholics and Jews united in positive action.

Learning brotherhood, like any other kind of learning, depends on activity. As individuals learn to know each other better, training and faith can outmode group intolerance.

The writer lived his boyhood in a New Jersey Protestant community where he never "learned" Catholics or Jews. His Scotch-Irish forebears, automatically and without thinking about it at all, transmitted the age-old anti-Roman hostilities from the social heritage of the Orange and Green feud. The prejudice was largely in the realm of feeling. The automatic-rejection response and the natural impulse to withdraw from anything connected with Roman Catholicism was as deep in me as it was bigoted.

As seniors in high school, the daughters of a Methodist minister and myself were led by curiosity into a wild New York adventure one Sunday afternoon. We invaded St. Patrick's Cathedral while a service was in process. The dignity and the beauty of the place and the friendliness of Catholics there initiated a long reconditioning process which led me to study, explore and to seek rewarding friendships with Roman Catholics in college, in the Army and in twenty years of community life. While I have yielded none of my prior religious convictions, brotherhood across religious barriers was substituted for bigotry and ignorance.

Warm, pleasant, happy emotional associations, deep in the subconscious are necessary in the psychic conditioning of intergroup teamwork. But the replacement of stereotype prejudices with good-will does not necessarily begin as an emotional experience. It is partly a question of habit. It may be the ultimate result of a plan, a cal-

MARRIAGES

BORLAK-HILTZ

The marriage of Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hiltz, 60 Borden Street, to Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Borlak, 22 Duke Street, Brantford, took place at Yeshiva Torah Chaim Synagogue, Sunday, March 20, at half-past five o'clock, Rabbi A. Price, and Rabbi A. Felder, of Brantford, officiated, assisted by Cantor H. Bornstein, of New York. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her white satin gown, trimmed with lace, had a Chinese neckline, with fitted bodice, buttoned down the front to the waist, and long pointed sleeves, and the full skirt shaped itself into a long circular train. Her long, lace, embroidered veil was held by a crown of matching lace, and she carried a cascade of Calla lilies. Mrs. H. Borlak, sister-in-law of the groom, was matron of honour, in a yellow brocaded satin off-the-shoulder gown, which had a yellow net cape, and a full skirt, and her yellow net crown was trimmed with Talisman roses, matching the cascade bouquet. Miss Doris Venick, in a blue brocaded satin off-the-shoulder gown, which had a full skirt; Miriam Cohen, in a pink satin off-the-shoulder gown, with full skirt; Sylvia Ruben, Cleveland, Ohio, in a blue satin off-the-shoulder gown, with full skirt; Mrs. S. Winick, in a pink satin gown, trimmed with net, with high round neckline, and a full skirt; Shirley Finer, in a pink marquisette gown, trimmed with lace, with a Peter-Pan neckline, long fitted sleeves, and a full skirt; Rose Winick, in a blue marquisette off-the-shoulder gown, with a full skirt; Goldie Borlack, in a bolero pink taffeta gown, trimmed with eyelet, which had a full skirt; Mrs. L. Chernofsky, in a blue taffeta gown, trimmed with lace, having a high round neckline, with long fitted sleeves, and a full skirt; were bridesmaids. They had matching bonnets and mitts, and carried bouquets of spring flowers. Sheila Hiltz and Gail Flodder, cousins of the bride, were junior bridesmaids, in peach-coloured and aquamarine-blue taffeta dresses, which had boat-shaped necklines, with short sleeves, and full skirts, trimmed with fuchsia-coloured velvet bows. They had matching bonnets and carried nosegays of spring flowers. Harvey Borlak, brother of the groom, was best man. Stanley Hiltz, brother of the bride; David Hammer, Murray Birnbaum, Sydney Winick, Richard Lightman, Irving Steinberg, Louis Chernofsky, and Phillip Ulster were ushers. Vernon Balaban, in full dress, was ring-bearer. GRAFSTEIN-LOCKETT

The marriage of Annette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lockett, 172 Beatrice Street, to Samuel, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Grafstein, 147 Baldwin Street, took place at Beth Jacob Synagogue, on Tuesday, February 8, at six-thirty o'clock, Rabbi A. Price officiated, assisted by Cantor B. Charioff. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a white satin gown, embroidered with seed pearl beads, which had a sweetheart neckline, with long pointed sleeves, and a full skirt lengthening into a train. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was fastened to a coronet of seed pearl beads and rhinestones, and she carried a cascade of Calla lilies. Mrs. L. Broderson, sister of the bride, was matron of honour, in a rose-coloured lame gown, which had a round pointed collar, long fitted sleeves, and a straight skirt, with a small train. Her headdress matched, and she carried a cascade of spring flowers. Mrs. R. Moses and Misses Evelyn Morayniss, Susan Zoberman, and Renee Morayniss were bridesmaids, each in a pink net gown, embroidered with silver bugle beads, having a high round neckline, with cap sleeves, and full skirts, with matching mitts. Each had a crown of spring flowers and carried a matching cascade. Morris Grafstein, brother of the groom, was best man. Leo Broderson, Raymond Moses, and Harold Grafstein and Sydney Morayniss, nephews of the groom, were ushers. Mrs. Lockett, mother of the bride, received in a Victorian-blue crepe gown, trimmed with blue birds and silver bugle beads, which had a V-neckline, long fitted sleeves, and a draped skirt. Her corsage was of pink roses and white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Grafstein, mother of the groom, assisted, in a gown of blue crepe, designed with a high, round-shirred neckline, with long fitted sleeves, and a draped skirt, and a corsage of American Beauty roses. The bride and groom left on their honeymoon to New York, the bride travelling in a shepherd's plaid suit, with navy-blue accessories, and a pink felt hat. They are residing on St. Clair Avenue West.

ORT Expands Work In Israel

A program for vocational training in Israel during the current year, adopted by the National Council of the Israeli ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training) and based upon the economic needs of the Israeli economy, was launched after a study of the nation's labor power and resources made by Dr. A. Syngalowski, chairman of the executive committee of the World ORT Union.

Already granted official recognition by the Israeli Government, the Council elected to supervise this program: Engineer J. Shapira, director general of the Palestine Electric Corporation, president; Dr. Y. Beham, lawyer, chairman of the Executive Committee; Engineer S. Kaplansky, principal of the famous Haifa Technion, chairman of ORT's Technical Committee.

With the rapid demobilization of soldiers, ORT has already established five courses in Jaffa and plans shortly to establish similar training centers in Jerusalem. The program will prevent the demoralization which usually accompanies the soldier's discharge from service if he finds himself unable to work at any productive labor. It will also solve the problem of skilled labor to build the infant industry of the new State. This major step was taken in agreement with the Ministry of War.

Buildings, modern equipment and teachers for the establishment of 26 courses throughout Israel are at the disposal of ORT and schools are now being opened, fulfilling the first part of ORT's detailed program. Concentrating upon training agricultural mechanics to answer the manpower requirements of this most important industry, ORT proposes to establish four schools devoted to this work. Schools being established in Ramat-Gan and Afula will train skilled labor for the manufacture of the sorely needed textiles without which the new nation cannot flourish.

The important tourist industry essential for obtaining the necessary foreign exchange will be developed by the establishment of two-year courses for adults in the making of souvenir articles of leather, wood, metal and stone.

ORT is also contributing to the solution of the juvenile delinquency problem which has been a growing and aggravating difficulty with the influx of many orphaned DP's. ORT training classes for these youngsters represent not only the means through which they may learn trades to perform constructive work but also the centers in which they find the attention and care which many of them have never known. The funds for the Israeli program will be supplied by ORT organizations throughout the world.

The agreement between the American ORT Federation and the Joint Distribution Committee (JDC), signed by George Backer, of New York, president of American ORT, and Monroe Goldwater, chairman of the JDC Reconstruction Committee, and counter-signed by David Lvovitch, chairman of the executive committee of the World ORT Union; and Alexander Halpern, vice-president of the Union, provides for a JDC grant of $1,500,000 to ORT from the collections of the United Jewish Appeal, through which the JDC receives its funds. ORT will not conduct an independent fund-raising campaign in the United States this year.

These funds, plus the supplementary $300,000 to be raised by the World ORT Union from sources outside the United States, will sustain a program of training and rehabilitation in Europe and North Africa. Currently 190 JDC-supported ORT vocational training centers are functioning in Europe, including the DP camps of Germany, Austria and Italy, a total of 20,404 students are enrolled in 1,096 different classes. Last year 11,700 students were graduated and an additional 11,000 received some training prior to emigration. Projects in Casablanca and Algiers, North Africa, are providing instruction to 863 students in ten classes.

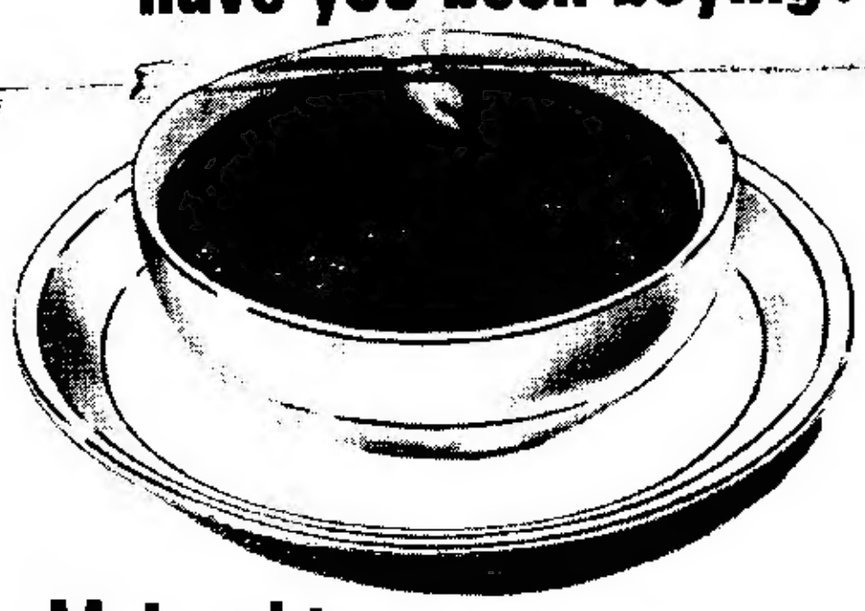
Talking about *"milchig" meals... What kind of tomato soup have you been buying?



Make this TASTE TEST *at home!... and your family will discover the wonderful difference!

With "milchig" meals on the increase in Jewish homes, the question of soup becomes of greater importance. Cream of tomato soup, long a favourite for dairy meals, is a candidate for your family's favour.

But which cream of tomato soup? Which tomato soup, in fact? Try this test at home and see for yourself. Simply heat a tin of Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup and a tin of any other brand you choose. Serve half-helpings of each. Then take a vote when your family has tasted the wonderful difference. It will be two to one for Heinz probably.

We made this test recently with dietitians, who are supposed to know most about the good qualities of soups. They registered a higher preference for Heinz than a group of housewives.

Lucky, isn't it, that so good a soup contains no ingredients contrary to Jewish Dietary Laws? Buy a few cans next time you shop. Compare them at the same meal with any other brand.

65% of a group of housewives voted HEINZ their top favourite

When a group of housewives sat down to a taste-test lately (without knowing what soups they were being served), more than 65% preferred Heinz. A group of dietitians in a similar test gave Heinz first place by a margin of almost four out of five.

If you have not yet tried all the delicious meatless soups listed below, there is a treat in store for you.

HANDS IN TRAINING... FOR ONTARIO

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, Swissaire machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity.

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy—that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

ISRAELI STUDY U.S. HOUSING

Formation of a Research Council on Housing for Israel was announced by J. W. Wunsch, president of the American Technion Society, at the organization's offices, 154 Nassau Street, New York. The Council, headed by Col. J. R. Elyachar, New York consulting engineer and builder, is composed of leading American architects, engineers and construction experts who will work in conjunction with an advisory committee of four Israeli experts, Dr. Alexander Klein, head of the Town Planning Institute of the Haifa Technion; Dr. Joseph Neufeld architect who designed the Hadassah Hospital and Medical School in Jerusalem; Dr. Alfred M. Freudenthal, Professor of Civil Engineering at the Technion and Moshe Palti, industrialist and construction expert, in the U.S. to study American housing techniques.

The new research group will collect, assemble and channelize information on housing which it will transmit to Israel through Technion, Israel's Institute of Technology. One of the first projects the group will tackle will be a thorough exploration of the subject of pre-fabricated housing as adapted to the social, economic, and environmental conditions prevalent in Israel and the Middle East.

The Council is an off-shoot of the Society's Committee on Technological and Industrial Developments, formed five years ago to advise Palestine industrial, civic and governmental groups on technological problems. The Committee works under the Society's program which calls for support of the Technion with funds and technical know-how and the furthering of the industrialization of the new Jewish State.

In the Passover display designed to contrast antique ceremonial and religious art forms with contemporary interpretations, at the Jewish Museum, 1109 Fifth Avenue, New York, of special interest was a 15th century Hispano-Moresque Seder plate, made of Faience, generally considered to be one of the world's most outstanding examples of Jewish art. Also shown were two model Seder tables, one set with antique ritual objects, and its companion-piece with items designed in the contemporary mode. The modern setting is comprised entirely of silver piece wrought in Jerusalem by the silversmith, H. J. Ettlinger. Before a 19th century Italian Torah curtain and placed in the center of the room, was a reader's desk displaying a late 18th century prayer book on loan from the Library of the Jewish Theological Seminary. In addition, one entire wall was hung with four original prints of the famed Ben Shahn Haggadah, a gift of Mrs. Felix M. Warburg to the Museum.

Thelma Sharon, aged eighteen months, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam. Robinovitch, 1120 Lajoie Avenue, Montreal; granddaughter of Mrs. Rose Lubich, Lajoie Avenue; and of Mr. and Mrs. J. Robinovitch, Lajoie Avenue; great-granddaughter of Mrs. R. Pollack, 1350 Lajoie Avenue.

The Ancient Mariner was in trouble because there was "water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink." But many Canadians who need only turn a tap do not get enough water to keep their bodies functioning properly. Medical men say a person needs several glasses of water each day. Water is important as a lubricant to keep the bodily machine in action.

The flag of Israel flew for the first time over a ship in the Western Hemisphere as the S.S. Haifa was dedicated at Potts Cove Pier, at Twelfth Street, Astoria, Queens, New York. The Haifa, a 10,800-ton Canadian Victory ship, is the first of three new vessels to be purchased by the Israel-America Line, Ltd. Capt. Terrence Bond, of 144 Old Bergen Road, Jersey City, N.J., was in command and the ship was manned by a crew of thirty-eight, for the most part Israelis. Bartley C. Crum, former publisher of The Star, presided at the ceremony, which was attended by 1,000 persons. The dedication began with the exchange of an Israeli flag for a Canadian emblem, which was handed back to Maxwell T. Stuart, Canadian Trade Commissioner.

The 160 passengers aboard the SS Ville D'Amena, travelling from France to Australia, were entertained by HIAS (Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society) officials, and later supplied with medicines, special foods, and Passover items for a mid-ocean celebration of the holiday when they landed at Balboa, Canal Zone. The Australia-bound immigrants, who sailed from a French port, have 32 children. According to Rabbi Nathan Witkin, who met them as the HIAS representative, they were "badly in need" of certain foods for the children, medicines, cigarettes, and even necessities. While in Cristobal, the immigrants were guests at Purim services and a Purim party at the Colon Jewish Center.

culated campaign to erase an offending situation.

In one Michigan community, for example — there are many such examples — we were able to stop an organized hate program (the Ku Klux Klan and later the Silver Shirts) by working directly with business men, school boards, veterans' groups and pointing out the irreparable damage which might result to the community. Through its Project in Intergroup Relations the University of Denver won full participation for students of Mexican descent at campus dances and other affairs. A practice teacher at Rutgers University found that by giving her Negro students new opportunities for self-development, she could actually raise their intelligence quotients.

When a university professor in Texas dragged anti-Semitism into his lectures the college administration countered by forming a campus chapter of the National Conference of Christian and Jews and sending speakers into surrounding communities to plan programs for better understanding among Protestants, Catholics and Jews.

Such small inroads into established patterns of prejudice may appear to the impatient reformer as mere exceptions which only serve to dramatize the widespread practice of segregation, discrimination in housing, in educational opportunities, employment practices and hospital care.

So why do we bother with small, isolated situations which arise? Why put on a "Brotherhood Week"? Why not laws which safeguard for every American his inalienable rights?

Sociologists, religious teachers, educators and psychiatrists all recognize that changes brought about by learning must be accompanied not only by the redemptive influence of religion but also by certain legislation.

But we also know that law cannot ignore custom or opinion, that ideals must first penetrate into the consciousness and habits of our people before they can be effective. It would be much better, for example, if our social science textbooks used in elementary and secondary schools would not keep referring to certain immigrant groups as "hordes" or "swarms" and stop spreading the impression that all Jews share certain common traits, that Asiatic people are inferior, and that all Negroes are prototypes of "plantation mammy" and "Uncle Remus". But such changes cannot be accomplished by legislation. It is through knowledge and training, through better advertising and fuller use of mass educational media, through the working out of individual problems as they arise — through learning — that brotherhood must first be taught and learned.

Learning does cut new patterns of human relations. Twenty years ago job discrimination was accepted as something akin to human nature and it was said that you can't change human nature. Now there is a strong segment of public opinion supporting fair employment legislation.

The spadework for progress in human relations, from the passing of demonology to the abolition of slavery, to the appearance of Jackie Robinson at Ebbets Field, has been done by a few people who believed, quite realistically, that education is a practical weapon against ignorance. Gradually it will become apparent that good-will is the only model for human freedom which makes sense in a democracy.

Bulk Of Wise Estate Goes To Family

The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, founder and rabbi of the Free Synagogue, and Zionist leader, who died in New York at the age of 75, left an estate of approximately $50,000. This was disclosed when his will was filed for probate with Surrogate William T. Collins. The value of the estate was estimated by Dr. Wise's son-in-law, Shad Polier, attorney for the executors.

In his will, drawn less than two weeks ago, Dr. Wise directed that his residuary estate be shared equally by his son, James Waterman Wise, of Old Mountain Road, Ridgefield, Conn., and his daughter, Justice Justine Wise Polier, of 175 East Sixty-fourth Street, Dr. Wise named his son and daughter as executors.

Rabbi Wise bequeathed legacies of $2,000 each to the American Jewish Congress and The Palestine Endowment Fund, Inc., and $1,000 each to the Free Synagogue and the American Friends of the Hebrew University, Inc. He also bequeathed $500 to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

He left legacies of $1,000 each to three grandchildren, Stephen Wise, Stephen Wise Tulin and Halle Wise, and $1,000 to Trudy Hess, foster-child of his daughter. Two other grandchildren, Jonathan Wise Polier and Deborah Brooks Wise, receive trusts of $5,000 each for their education and support.

Dr. Wise left gifts of $250 each to Gertrude Wolf and Ida Tilles Reebach, and $150 each to Leone Schwartz and Florence Eitelberg all workers and former workers for the Free Synagogue, and $500 "to my friend and kinswoman," Gertrude Bock Houser.

Dr. Wise also bequeathed to his son and daughter equal interests in "all my correspondence and writing and all my other literary property . . . and all sums of money due or about to become due thereunder." Mr. Polier said that Dr. Wise had just about finished his autobiography when he was seized by his last illness.

Each year in Canada some 15,000 children die in traffic accidents, many of which could have been avoided. Traffic experts believe that this terrible toll of life will continue until both motorists and pedestrians have been educated in the basic principles of traffic safety. Common sense safety habits can save our children's lives.

"I trust them more than I'd trust myself"

THE BANK's the place for my money. I always put part of my pay into my bank account—otherwise it burns a hole in my pocket. I guess I trust the bank more than I trust myself! I figure that's one reason why my savings have been building up the way they have.

Another reason I'm sold on a bank account is that I always know just where I stand. All I have to do is take a look at my pass-book. They're a lot better bookkeepers than I am.

What's more, what's in my pass-book is my business, and I can count on the bank people to keep their mouths shut about it. And that suits me just fine!

—and we have very little time to fill it!

THE BIG MOMENT IS HERE! Now we can empty the D. P. camps. Now 250,000 homeless Jews can go home — home to Israel. But we have to get them there, feed them, shelter them — put them back on their feet.

We must see to it that they do not have to live in Israel like D. P.'s. We must also help those who come to Canada. This is the order to fill — the biggest order in history.

Chaim Weizmann And The New Israel

Sivan the Fifth according to the Hebrew calendar marks the first Israeli anniversary. Throughout the Jewish world, therefore, celebrations are taking place and prayers of thanksgiving offered in recognition of Jewish national rebirth.

Multitudes today are reading the autobiography of the first President of Israel. Weizmann's work, "Trial And Error", should be read and cherished by all those who have respect for the facts and who are inclined to walk with history. The memoirs of this great man present the story not only of an individual but the portrait of a whole generation.

Dr. Weizmann was born in the little town of Motole, twenty-five miles from Pinsk, in Poland-Russia. His father was a lumber merchant of moderate means. Up to the age of eleven, young Weizmann attended Cheder and later pursued studies in the gymnasium of Pinsk. In the latter school he became vitally interested in chemistry and general science. This interest motivated him to continue his studies in the Universities of Western Europe.

Thus we find him attending Darmstadt, Berlin, Freiburg, and Geneva—institutions of higher learning. Here, in Geneva, he met a young medical student, of Russian-Jewish birth, who became Weizmann's wife. In 1904 Weizmann and his helpmate located in England where Weizmann became lecturer at the University of Manchester. Destiny brought the Weizmanns to the British Isles, for here commenced his great ambassadorship in the cause of Israel. It was natural for the British people because of their feeling for the Hebrew Bible to give a sympathetic ear to Weizmann's labours in the cause of Israel's rebirth as a nation in the Holy Land.

Weizmann imbibed his Zionism while a mere lad in his parents' home. The Weizmann home at all times was dominated by a love for Zion. Weizmann's father was at the very beginning directly interested in the Choveve Zion movement which motivated many Russian families to move to Palestine and colonize the land as early as 1882. When Theodor Herzl appeared on the Jewish scene, Weizmann responded to his call and helped organize the Russian-Jewish students in particular in the cause of Zionism. While Herzl, the mystic new leader, stirred the world, he did not have enough of Jewish background to inspire the masses of East Europe. It was Weizmann who was able to do this tremendous job, and proved a worthy collaborator with Herzl in laying the foundations of political Zionism as well as of giving emphasis to the cultural program of Zionism.

When World War I broke out, the British Admiralty summoned Weizmann to its laboratories. Here the great chemist made unique contributions to the Allied cause and helped much in the speeding of victory for the democracies. The British government, in recognition of Weizmann's services, wished to reward him, so when Lloyd George, a member of the British cabinet, inquired of Chaim Weizmann what were his wishes in this regard, he replied, "Nothing for myself but something for my people". Hence the Balfour Declaration came into being. Hence, too, the early partnership between Britain and the Jewish people in the building of the National Jewish Home in Palestine became an historic adventure.

However, after Weizmann won the Balfour Declaration he soon had to defend it against evil forces which were at work to nullify this pledge which Britain and fifty-two sovereign states made to Israel. Weizmann, who was the symbol of British-Jewish co-operation, fought heroically. His patience was often tried and yet at no time did he permit bitterness to overtake him. When World War II threatened civilization and the British Government adopted the infamous White Paper, which was a breach of promise, nevertheless, Weizmann mobilized the Jews of Palestine and the Jews of the World in the cause of the democratic nations and in particular in aid of Britain at a time when Britain stood alone.

Then came victory and the Jews of Palestine began to resist the White Paper policy. Weizmann himself saw how the new government of Britain broke every promise made to the Jewish people and, of course, his heart, too, was broken. With the birth of th United Nations the political struggle for the Jewish national home became a most challenging undertaking. Finally, on November 29th, 1947, despite British opposition, the resolution of partition was adopted and Palestine was divided into two. Soon, even with the failure of the United Nations to implement this resolution, the Jews of Palestine took matters in their own hands, created a Jewish state, and elected Weizmann the first president of Israel.

Weizmann represents the best in Zionism. All his life and even his scientific achievements were dedicated to his people. Thus in Rehovoth, Palestine, Weizmann built his home and there, too, he erected the great research institutions. Through them he gathered some of the ablest Jewish men of science, and hopes to contribute much in making Israel the great center of scientific activity in the Near East.

More fortunate is Dr. Chaim Weizmann than Moses. For, unlike Moses, Dr. Weizmann crossed the Jordan and brought his people to the Promised Land. And, behold, now what Israel has achieved in these dramatic twelve months of its existence! Single-handedly Israel heroically smashed joint aggression by five Arab states. It created the most stable representative government in the Near East, for it is a government that truly exists by the will of the people.

Israel has shattered all historic precedent by increasing during these twelve months its population thirty percent through immigration. And what is more it has launched schemes of national development such as housing and health programs that are challenging to any modern state in existence for many years. The doors of Israel are open to the homeless Jews of the world and here is one place on earth where the persecuted may find welcome and security.

On this anniversary we recall the friends of Israel, who, motivated by a sense of historic justice, have helped in the advance of Jewish Statehood. The names of these great Christian friends will ever be enshrined in the annals of Jewish history.

Chaim Weizmann remains the spiritual head of the great Zionist movement because he embodies within himself the healthiest instincts of the Jewish people. Though one of the great scientists of our day, Weizmann did not neglect his people but rather has dedicated his scientific endeavours to the cause of Israel and through Israel to the cause of humanity.

Even as we salute the Jewish state on this anniversary we hail the noble president of Israel, Chaim Weizmann. Ever shall we remember that Saturday evening of April 23rd when twenty-three hundred of us, including some of the dignitaries of state, gathered at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, to salute the Israeli president. It was, indeed, a thrilling experience and a great dramatic event and one most timely in the face of Israel's application for membership in the United Nations. We have the faith that Israel, despite the manoeuverings of anti-Jewish elements, will find her historic place in the United Nations and will add strength to the organization in advancing world peace and world brotherhood.

forts to mobilize emigration from America; in the organization of youth training camps; on the indoctrination of our youth and adults with Jewish nationalism; in insisting that American Jews are 'obligated' to finance the establishment of the State of Israel, a process which they believe will require from ten to twenty years.

"Zionism can no longer be excused as humanitarian. It will be recognized as the active participation in a foreign nationalism which it is."

Rabbi Elmer Berger of New York, national executive director of the council, spoke in similar vein, urging American Jews not to link their religion with nationalism, says the New York Times.

"'Jewish' nationalism is mechanistic philosophy founded on the thesis of the inevitability and determinism of anti-Semitism," he said. "Where that determinism does not exist, 'Jewish' nationalists are committed to create it by molding minds and conditions of separatism which support their thesis."

He described as short-sighted and disastrous the concept that "to be a Jew one must now sacrifice freedom of political decisions and join a pro-Israel, pro-Zionist bloc."

The American Council for Judaism at the close of the conference, adopted a statement reaffirming its basic position that "Americans of Jewish faith must strive to achieve political, civic, cultural and social integration with the American people" and stressing the Council's adherence to the universal traditions of Judaism in opposition to "Jewish nationalism."

Vigorous disagreement with those who misrepresent American Jews "either by labeling them as a separate nationality or by seeking to impose upon them special obligations of the state of Israel" was expressed in the statement. It said:

"We believe profoundly that all Israelis should be free to work out a way of life, enlisting their whole allegiance to their state, as we in America will continue to work out our way of life as an inseparable part of the American people. The most loyal citizens of Israel and America could wish no more.

"But the contention that this is a 'Jewish' nationalism, relating to all Jews politically to the state of Israel and Israel to all Jews, makes it vital that we achieve the complete identification of American Jews with the American people."

To implement its program, the Council, called upon all Jews in America, Orthodox, Conservative or Reform, "to become active members of synagogue or temple."

The Council further urged all rabbis to "emphasize in the pulpit and in the religious schools, those spiritual qualities which are the power and the glory of Judaism." The Council's chapters in twenty-five states and fifty cities were urged by the 200 delegates, including rabbis and laymen, "to participate fully as individuals in the religious, civic, cultural political and social life of their community and nation."

Jewish religious schools throughout the country also were urged "to teach our children the spiritual, moral and ethical content of Judaism as a sustaining religious faith and not a nationalist loyalty."

The Council was told by Prof. Milton R. Konvitz, of Cornell University, that "it would repay the citizens of Israel to study and duplicate" the constitutional principle of separation of church and state and religious freedom enjoyed by American Jews.

Dr. Konvitz, an authority on industrial relations and civil rights, asserted that recent reports had indicated that "many influential Jews in Israel have no intention to keep the church and state separate."

Influential Israeli leaders, he said, had been reported favoring the placing of marriage in the exclusive jurisdiction of Orthodox rabbis in order to prevent mixed marriages. He also recalled a report that immigration certificates had been refused by Israeli authorities in cases where one of a married couple was not a Jew. Dr. Konvitz stressed the fact that rabbinic judges received their salaries and their funds for the maintenance of their courts from the Government treasury.

In another resolution apparently referring to the American Jewish Committee, a non-Zionist group, but not naming it, the Council expressed its gratification "that in recent months several Jewish organizations in the United States had by public statement indicated an awareness of the dangers inherent in Jewish nationalism in this country."

The delegates, rabbis and laymen, pledged wholehearted cooperation to any such organization in measures to implement such statements by "practical and specific programs of action."

The conference also voted approval of a resolution protesting "the use of coercion and intimidation of public issues", according to the New York Herald Tribune.

Describing philanthropy as "an expression of personal responsibility to be determined by the conscience of each individual," the resolution said:

"We urge our co-religionists to conduct all organized efforts for fund-raising and for creating public opinion with the most meticulous regard to the basic freedoms of America and Judaism respecting the individual's freedom of conscience."

Asserting that Council members "are deeply concerned with the humanitarian needs of their co-religionists throughout the world," the resolution urged Americans of Jewish faith to "give most generously to such organizations as, in conformity with their personal convictions, raise funds for the relief, resettlement, rehabilitation and other humanitarian needs of our co-religionists."

Council delegates also expressed the hope "that the citizens of the State of Israel and those who in the future may seek to rebuild their lives there may enjoy life, liberty and happiness such as we in America have enjoyed for generations."

Another resolution voiced the council's support of the McGrath-Neely bill in the Senate and the Celler bill in the House which would liberalize the present DP law to permit the entry of increased numbers of homeless persons into this country.

"We believe that the United States should set an example of leadership to all countries by a liberal immigration policy for DP's of all faiths," the resolution said.

Lessing J. Rosenwald was re-elected for a sixth term as president of the Council. D. Hays Solis-Cohen and Morris Wolf, both of Philadelphia, Pa., were re-elected treasurer and secretary, respectively.

would "drain Israel of its spiritual vitality." He emphasized that housing was Israel's major problem at present, and appealed to American Jews to support the United Jewish Appeal's campaign.

"Every ship that arrives in Israel is fresh inspiration for the people of Israel," he declared. "American Jewry is today the material mainstay of world Jewry. I am confident that it will measure up, as it has in the past, to its obligations on behalf of the thousands of homeless and oppressed who are streaming into Israel. I am confident that it will make it possible for the United Jewish Appeal to provide the funds which are needed to avert a grave crisis."

During the press conference a reporter asked him about a book he carried.

"That is a Bible," he replied. "Would you like me to teach it to you?"

"A man came to a Rabbi once and said: 'Teach me the Bible while I stand on one leg.' The Rabbi said: 'I can do that. The Bible says 'Love thy neighbor.' All the rest is explanation and elaboration.'"

Housing conditions of 60,000 Jews in reception camps, with immigration continuing at more than 1,000 a day, are deplorable, he said. American Jewry must alleviate this grave crisis by financing home construction.

"We have given our lives," he said. "American Jewry must give at least part of its substance."

Reversing roles with the newspaper men, Rabbi Herzog asked: "Haven't you any prefabricated homes or house you could let us have? You people, I have heard, can build castles overnight."

Rabbi Herzog, sixty, has been chief rabbi of Israel for thirteen years, starting when Palestine was a British mandate. Among other duties, as chief rabbi, he has charge of all rabbinic courts in Israel which deal with problems of marriage and the family.

TURNING THE PAGES OF
"CANADA UNLIMITED"

When Canada was growing up, hewing a living from the virgin forest left little time for holidaying. By the 1790's, visits to distant friends were popular. Settlers would travel three hundred miles by sleigh in winter to see their friends.

Picnics were popular by 1835. While the men fished, the women picked berries, and all joined for lunch. In Springtime, excursions to the woods for "maple-sugar making" were greeted with delight.

With the arrival of the automobile about 1900, and improvement in the roads, people began to travel to "see the sights". Touring to Niagara Falls, Muskoka or the Laurentians, became a common holiday pastime.

Today, tourists are big business. Canada is a vast wonderland, with countless surprises for the sightseer—and each year millions of Canadians and visitors tour our land. The opportunities that exist in the tourist industry are many—for there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited.
